

Ms Esther Bares

Esther has close to 10 years experience in corporate sustainability, reporting, human rights, international development and labour relations. With a background in International relations, she began her career in the non-for profit sector working on human rights, international development and humanitarian relief at headquarters and in the field. She then worked in labour relations, focusing on research and social dialogue. In 2011, she joined SGS, managing sustainability projects, training and reporting across the company. In 2014 she joined the Corporate Responsibility team of Novartis as Senior Reporting Manager, leading the non-financial reporting. Through her experience in sustainability and reporting Esther brings significant insight in corporate sustainability topics as well as communications, and data and information system management across complex organizations.

She currently works in risk management as well as a sustainability and reporting expert.
